street cars and a train of the Baltimore and Ohlo Railroad Company was last night only averted at the Monroe street crossing by the presence of mind of the driver of the former, William Adams. There has been for a long time past an electric bell at this point, which begins ringing when a train is about half a mile east of the crossing and does not cease until the train is about as far west; but most people in Anacostia seem to have become used to the ringing and pay but little attention to it. About 9 o'clock the car Mr. Adams was driving approached the crossing quite rapidly while the train was standing there, but, fortunately, the driver noticed it and succeeded in stopping his car before any damage had been inflicted either on the car or any of his passengers. When the agricultural fair closed it was supposed that racing in this section would close for the season, but Saturday the citizens of the town and vicinity were treated to a trial of speed that laid in the shade anything seen at the exhibition. About two weeks ago a man who registered as Joseph Kirby took rooms at the Corcoran Hotel, and though apparently a little short of cash, proceeded to make himself very agreeable to guests and visitors. About the dining hour Saturday Mr. Washington Danienhower, proprietor of the Fredonia Hotel at Washington, called at the Corcoran for dinner, and at once recognized in Mr. Kirby a person who had for some time been a guest at his hotel, and who had suddenly left without paying his bill. He immediately called on Mr. Kirby for a settlement, which was promised at a future time, but this did not sult Mr. Danenhower, and he threatened to have Kirby surrested, leaving the dining room for the purpose. Mr. Danenhower, learning the course he had taken, boarded a train, leaving here at 2 p.m., and reached the city in time to inform the officers, and be able to give Mr. Kirby a suitable reception upon his arrival. He stated that Kirby registered at the Fredonia as H. C. Rigsley. During his stay here Kirby made filmself very agreeable to several young gentlemen of the town, and had received a promise from a number of them to spend the coming winter with him upon his cotton plantation in the far south. QUARANTINE CIRCULARS.

As to Baggage From Infected Ports and as to Imported Animals. The Treasury Department has issued a circular to medical officers of the marine hospital service, consular officers, collectors of customs, state and local quarantine officers steamship companies and others concerned stating that, on account of the officially reported prevalence of cholera in China and Japan, and in Honolulu, it is ordered "that all unlabeled baggage of steerage passengers, including hand baggage, and al labeled baggage of said passengers, which in the opinion of the quarantine officers, should be disinfected or redisinfected,' shall be disinfected as provided in the shall be disinfected as provided in the quarantine regulations, before being landed. This regulation will also apply to any other baggage which the quarantine officers may suspect of being infected.

The acting secretary of the treasury has issued instructions to customs officials that hereafter no animals shall be permitted to be entered at any port of the United States without the deposit by the importer, owner, consignee or agent of a sum sufficient to defray the expenses incident to their quarantine, or the filing with the collector by the quarantine officers of a certificate to the effect that satisfactory arrangements have been made for the keeping of the animals during the ninety days' quarantine have been made for the keeping of the ani-mals during the ninety days' quarantine period. Heretofore the department has ad-mitted cattle to entry, and much annoy-ance has resulted from there having been no provision made for their maintenance. Hereafter the animals will not be entered until such provision has been made.
